WINERY

Visitors traveling from Sienna into Chianti Classico are greeted by the historic site of Villa Cerna as they cross the first hill into the famed sub-region. Luigi Cecchi purchased Villa Cerna in 1962, during a key rebuilding moment for Chianti Classico. This was the first of the Cecchi Family's estate purchases, though they had been making wine for decades prior. The family has since completely restored the original structure and constructed the winemaking facility and cellar. Over the past 60+ years they have reorganized and revitalized the vineyards, undertaking meticulous environmental research to identify the ideal clones for the local soil types and microclimates of the property. The swooping valley that leads up to Castellina in Chianti provides ideal sun exposure for the vineyards of Villa Cerna, of which 90% are Sangiovese and 10% are native varietals that were already present on the land. The Cecchi family places a special focus on hospitality at Villa Cerna, using it to showcase the values shared by each of their properties.
