The Three Things to Know

1. Revived Mountain Terroir

At just 23 years old, Elio Ottin transformed rough, steep terrain with coarse-grained soil between Quart and Saint-Christophe into thriving vineyards that now yield some of the Aosta Valley's finest high-altitude wines.

2. Farmer-Scholar Philosophy

Elio Ottin views his role of a farmer as a scholar of the earth. This is how he approaches his winemaking — studying, nurturing, and respecting the land. Elio and his son Nicolas' deep agronomic focus shapes every decision in the vineyard and cellar.

3. Closed-Cycle Sustainability

The entire winery runs on renewable mountain resources — stream water, solar energy, and biomass — while the vineyards are fertilized solely with manure from Ottin's own cattle, completing a fully self-sustaining ecosystem rooted in his history and values.

What Others Are Saying

"Elio Ottin switched from selling grapes to bottling his own wines in 2007.

Working with his son Nicolas, Ottin is now regarded as one of the top producers in Valle d'Aosta." - Andy Howard MW, Decanter
